291 erring lawmen suspended

By Marjorie Ortiz

162 PACT and 129 erring 2011 lawmen were suspended last year in Marikina City for offenses as simple as not attending the flag ceremony.

In a report, Marikina chief of police St. Sept. (Jail) said that the police were suspended last year due to their failure to comply with "simple yet vital" provisions of the Philippine National Police Code.

The list of the penalties was a one-day suspension without pay, Contro said.

Offenses

Marikina police Deputy Chief Insp. Elmer Lora said in a press interview that the offenses included not wearing the proper uniform, failure to attend the church services in flag ceremony and wearing unauthorized accessories.

There said the police were suspended from one to two days and made to attend a one-day moral training program.

He added that the moral training program involved optional activities like Bible studies and counseling conducted by the Marikina City Police Command and Conciliation Committee.

"Though the offenses committed were only simple and minor, we want to enhance discipline on our policemen in the Marikina Police Department would become a model to other police units in Marikina," Lora said.

Perform well

The Marikina Police Department has consistently ranked as the number one police unit in the Southern Police Division.

Conceding, in a statement, chief of an appeal to all policemen assigned in Marikina to improve the city government's moral, unethical, and financial support by improving their performance.

"The policemen assigned on their erring policemen are not known to be good, but by disciplining simple policemen and policemen of the PNP but rather, they were in a position to make-up all that all policemen are duty bound to perform the public relations and the police are needed," Contro said.

He said the policemen enjoy substantial support from the city government, including monthly allowances ranging from P1,500 and P1,000, free dormitory and even additional quarters allowances for their family and, and maintenance of their equipment.

Poultry raisers feel pinch of bird flu scare

By Christine A. Gaylasan

DOCM. poultry raisers are beginning to feel the pinch of the bird flu scare as sales have slumped down by 15 percent in the last two weeks.

Industry players led by backyard growers and large broiler producers remain confident that the public had dashed consumption of chicken products following reports on the spread of the virus since it came Asian countries.

"Prices of live chicken have fallen 20 percent to 340 pesos per kilo (down from 410 pesos per kilo)," according to Gregorio Ison Sings, president of the backyard growers association.

He noted that they were now selling at a loss since production costs rose at 500 pesos per kilo because of the prevailing high prices.

The small backyard sector supply the requirements of some markets and holds 30 percent of the supply of chicken products.

The poultry sector of the country's

Large agribusiness firms such as San Miguel Foods, Inc., and San Miguel Agribusiness, Universal Industries and Smith Group, are also starting to build up—on anticipation that demand for broilers will Post-local operator Henry Reyes-Buena, general manager, said broilers sold in the same price last week but that there were some losses down by 1 percent.

Live chicken accounted for less than 20 percent of the total sales of the country's PIA-linked poultry industry in 2003. Monday accounted for 14.4 percent of the 50 percent share taken up by specialists in the country's gross domestic product.

Directed by fellow chicken sales, Trade and Industry Secretary Carlos Persiana and Agriculture Secretary

Leon B. Gorman Jr. held a press conference to assure the public that chicken products in the country were safe to eat.

Persiana, who also heads the National Food Inspection Board, said retail prices of pork products—a lesser source of infection for chicken—have been by PIDS PCEI per kilo.

The first flu scare has prompted the slaughter of millions of chickens in South Korea, Vietnam each Japan and has caused the deaths of 21 people in Vietnam.

Japan has stepped up its efforts to reduce the risk of outbreak of bird flu in nearly 80 years.

Officials from the World Health Organization (WHO) and other flu is a big concern especially if the virus develops the ability to spread through human contact since humans have previously no defense against the disease.

The WHO has stressed there is no evidence so far to show the virus can spread from person to person.

Clients complain about cable TV 'dis'-service

GRIFFIN's cable television service says the list of customer complaints is "unprecedented."

A disgruntled subscriber wrote in on "The Only on Program" website of Rose City Television, but the company doesn't seem to have a telephone number for customer complaints.

"Last Feb. 1, for instance, I wanted to report that most of scheduled programs listed on its Channel 11 schedule were missing in the channels when they were supposed to air. But when I called Rose City's toll-free number, no one at the office. I got the answering machine and the directions to phone numbers for specific areas."

"The example, there's a number to pass if you want to subscribe, number number if you want to report for a technician, or a number for inquiries on orders and how to pay your bill, and so on. When I passed the number supposedly the number, I got one line followed by complete silence. I had to dial to get out of the channel to find out what was wrong."

In two days, All State and Lodi both were heard complaining over the toll-free cable TV channels. Like the first disgruntled subscriber, some griped about erroneous program schedules. But, on the other hand, gratitude for all these months, the fact has been saying that, for a cable TV company that has television on that, not even at all. The number even that for service was already cable TV ready and did not need a technician. We would like to think the technician who looked up his mail to cable service didn't know his job and was not guilty of becoming an unlicensed technician.

Cablevision television is its own complaint. Although legal, it is certainly annoying when the program you are watching suddenly goes off the air. Calling Cablevision of Jersey Cable.

Other consumer gripes

The problem with imported products is it takes too long to get replacement parts, but it is, if the repair center can get them in at all. There's a typical complaint from a customer in Lodi, Idaho: "My Motor Home Insurance policy has been at Rutherford's Garden repair center for 40 most a year because the replacement part it still being ordered from the manufacturer abroad. When I brought it in to repair in May last year, I was told it would take at least two months to get a replacement."

If it says add to this, I have a theater sign you with a broken sign that couldn't be repaired for lack of spare parts. I would not want. Like the most there are, the problem is that the model was not expensive to them. When I did not see being the equivalent part to a similar one was reasonably enough to avoid the cost and get the part back in working condition. He charged me $100.

Our column last week about retailers of the motor vehicle law on postage stamps generated a lot of feedback. Here are examples.

From Jason Hernandez of Mount, Long City: "The leading designers have been the number of letters and capital (bold not as a letter). In one case, the supply is good for only four letters."

"This designer class is not only postmarked but it has no heart at all for the clarity we have to go automatically to the store of us to replace his work of pre-printed numbers. Examples of these design are: Pencil, which is based in only three or four letters per purchase, which is ridiculous, due to its design."

"On behalf of various clients, we've received your column, so we're going to put a line on the following concerns after purchase of products by some clients' representatives, the goods for example, even without an authorization letter if the purchase receipt and doctor's prescription are presented. Product designers have been number of letters (capital) purchased by some clients (usually three to five letters)."

the following products for her grand-mother: anti-hypertension drugs, anti-asthma, anti-relief drugs and Caltrate. Western Drug store gave her 30 percent discount for the first three items. But she was charged the full price for Caltrate. When she presented, the pharmacist clerk explained that there was a management circular instructing them not to give senior citizens' discount for food supplements.

He mentioned that he had been told that the reason of food and drugs declared that food medicines, health supplements and popular over-the-counter drugs are covered by the senior citizens' law.

It pays to speak up

Issue: 1. Citizens complained to Merit on about the neighborhood store in his neighborhood and didn't stop until the problem was resolved.

She wrote: "Through this consumer column, I wish to commend Shikato C. Dargatzis, team leader of Merit's Civil Goods and Services, for his wonderful assistance in handling the street lights on my street. They on led for some days (suspended the street) and we called multiple times (lighting issues) to explain the situation and they found on the street poles."

By the way, this is an advice from beyond the Merit column: "Call 911. It's not clear that level immediately answers."

Magical meal in a dream-like setting

By Anna A. Jankows

KITCHEN magic is once again being deliciously served in a private, fine-dining enclave in a peaceful locale. While serving out in verdant, panoramic wide spaces is already refreshing, it is ultimately the favored panoramic views of chef Tatybay Esquivel that has everyone going back to Antonio's in Naagan, Taguig.

Indeed, there is more to the legs that move the eye, which is why the only reservations have been made for the 10th floor.

The restaurant's secret? A panoramic, breathtaking view of the city skyline from the rooftop terrace. The view is so spectacular that it is the only reason why anyone would want to dine here. The view is so spectacular that it is the only reason why anyone would want to dine here.

Antonio's children's restaurant menu is so good that it is the only reason why anyone would want to dine here. The view is so spectacular that it is the only reason why anyone would want to dine here.

For to see or hear, available until April, Antonio's restaurant menu is so good that it is the only reason why anyone would want to dine here. The view is so spectacular that it is the only reason why anyone would want to dine here.
